Re: Recognition of Paul Olafson, Planning Projects Manager on Receiving the Professional Planner Award from New Mexico American Planning Association.

New Mexico American Planning Association (NM APA) recognized Paul Olafson with the Professional Planner award at the 2018 APA-NM Annual Conference in Las Cruces, NM on October 11th.

The purpose of the APA-NM Awards program is to recognize outstanding planners and planning projects throughout the New Mexico, and to encourage outstanding achievements in the application of planning principles and techniques to solve problems and improve our quality of life

The Professional Planner award is given to a planner who has made noteworthy contributions to the field of planning over a sustained period.

Paul Olafson has made significant contributions to the field of planning for over two decades since his days in the Peace Corps, when he worked in Thailand. Upon moving to New Mexico, Paul earned his Masters in Community Planning and Masters in Public Administration at the University of New Mexico. He has always shown dedication to improving communities and making government efforts efficient and effective. Paul initially worked with UNM Technical Assistance Office on projects in the La Cienega community where he worked on an application for the County's first open space acquisition, the La Cieneguilla Open Space Open Space property. Paul has been with Santa Fe County for 18 years working with Planning, Open Space and Trails, and Capital Projects. Paul was the lead planner on the La Cienega and La Cieneguilla Community Plan notable for its broad public outreach and dedication to the rich history of this area. Paul has also worked on several other community and district plans. Paul also worked on the Santa Fe River Trail and Santa Fe Rail Trail Planning, both of which have been very successful trails in encouraging multi-modal transportation in Santa Fe.

Paul has been instrumental in open space planning overall. With his help, the Open Space and Trails Program through Santa Fe County has grown to include over 6600 acres of open lands, 155 acres of parks, and 60 miles of trails. Managing these assets encompasses planning, capital improvements, maintenance, and volunteer opportunities for the use and enjoyment of Santa Fe County residents and visitors. Santa Fe County Open Space is shaping the future of this historical area, including working with the Los Potrerillos Open Space, which is the backdrop to the world-famous Santuario de Chimayo, helping to preserve the many cultural sites within Thornton Ranch, and making efforts to document and protect native plant and animal species throughout the County.

Paul overcame tremendous obstacles during construction of the District Courthouse when he worked with Santa Fe County projects. Extensive remediation and safety protocols necessitated an extra level of project management, which Paul oversaw himself. The building site, being in the densely built downtown area, created the challenge of doing hazard remediation even harder. Paul successfully concluded this project, which resulted in a beautiful courthouse on a clean site.

Paul serves in a variety of roles as the Planning Projects Manager and is currently working on development of the County 20 year Capital Improvements Plan as well as serving on the County Administrative Building project team.

Within the office, Paul is a true leader. He is always courteous and kind to his employees and the public. He watches out for his team, giving his own leave when his employees are on medical leave, making sure the crew is well-trained and prepared for any situation. During public meetings, he is an expert facilitator, always bringing about the best possible compromise or solution.
