Program Information

Teen Court of Santa Fe County is a non-profit government entity established in 1994 by Christy Thomas and modeled after a Teen Court program in Silver City, New Mexico. The current program is governed by Santa Fe County and is operated by 3 full time employees. The Teen Court Program is also dependent on numerous teen and adult volunteers to assist in the court process. The funds for the program are a compilation of five sources; Santa Fe County ($60,000), the City of Santa Fe ($40,000), Local DWI ($30,000), Administrative Office of the Courts ($60,000), and Teen Court fees ($20,000). The Teen Court program also receives and disperses funds from Santa Fe County ($110,000) for the sole purpose of funding summer youth programs not related to the Teen Court program.

Teen Court is a first time juvenile offenders program with alternative sentencing and is run for teens by teens. Teens are referred to the program by the local Municipal Court, Magistrate Court, Juvenile Probation & Parole, and Santa Fe Public Schools. The cases referred to Teen Court consist of traffic and/or misdemeanor offenses. Juvenile offenders are sentenced to community service, serving jury duty, and a mandatory DWI prevention media literacy class. Many times a prevention or educational component is added as a requirement based on a thorough assessment conducted at the Teen Court office. Teen Court does not determine guilt or innocence as the teen must accept responsibility for the offense to participate in the program. Teens are judged and sentenced by a teen jury. After the teen accepts full responsibility, and successfully completes the determined sentence, the offense is dismissed by the referring agency.

Teen Court of Santa Fe County services are more frequently sought out by other entities, as well as parents and guardians. The community network in Santa Fe continues to refer to Teen Court as an integral resource. The Teen Court Program facilitated 41 court sessions and 371 youth defendant court hearings in FY13. The program served 606 youth and their families FY11, 442 in FY12, and 506 in FY13.

The basic sentencing structure for our Teen Court program requires participants to complete community service, jury duty, and a DWI prevention media literacy class. Depending on the severity and circumstance of a traffic citation referral, other sentencing may include a letter of apology or a defensive driving class. Any traffic citation involving a misdemeanor offense would be handled as a misdemeanor referral. All misdemeanor referrals receive a drug and alcohol screening and assessment and are then referred to needed prevention programs. These programs include, but are not limited to; Substance Abuse Program, Middle School Parent Involvement Program, Behavioral Management Program, Shoplifting Intervention Class, or Restorative Justice Circle. All misdemeanor cases are subject to random urine analysis drug testing to prevent or suspend substance use. The majority of misdemeanor defendants involved in substance use offenses are required to attend the Family Night Presentation, which depicts the negative effects that substances have on the growing young brain.

The Santa Fe County Teen Court Program aims to be a prevention network of resources throughout the community to break the cycle of behavior that leads to criminal activity. The focus is on the youth of our community who are lacking the capacity to make the right decisions. The goal is to provide first time juvenile offenders with a second chance to make up for their mistakes, repair harm to victims, give back to the community, and learn the skills to enable them to make better choices in the future. The program also assists parents with their teens during these difficult times. Teen Court is a way to give teens and families the support and resources they need to get back on the right path.

The Santa Fe County Teen Court Program has experienced various types of success over the years. This year the focus of the Teen Court Program was youth development and community involvement. Our Teen Court Mural Program is designed specifically to support positive youth development while simultaneously beautifying communities and strengthening relationships within neighborhoods throughout Santa Fe County. The mural program gives opportunity to engage students in positive self-reflection as role models and constructive participants in their communities. The long term outcome of our Teen Mural Program is that youth will develop the personal and professional confidence by creating an appropriate mural design based on the client's directive using creativity and artistic knowledge. The youth learn to work collaboratively with peers and mentors to execute the project and represent their creative work to a wider audience through press conferences, community focus groups, and a public mural unveiling, among other opportunities.

Over the summer months, under the guidance of seasoned muralist Jonathan Cohen, students designed and painted the mural on the home of the original land owner of Frenchy's Field, bringing it back to life as if it were still inhabited today. The students' intention for their beautiful work of public art is to act not only as a means of deterring graffiti and creating a shared responsibility for graffiti prevention at Frenchy's Field, but also celebrating the unique and colorful history of the park area and the Santa Fe community. We celebrated with a mural unveiling on July 27, 2013. We are currently planning to begin an additional mural in April 2014.

Our anger management component has been a success, and we wanted to open it to a wider population in need. The Anger Management component now includes general behavioral management. The Santa Fe Mountain Center facilitates this component and has created a 3 session program designed to challenge participants to be accountable for their behaviors while encouraging them visualize a positive future. Participants learn to explore dreams and aspirations, while focusing on adrenaline management, decision making, healthy life style choices, and goal setting skills. The program is the design of a safe emotional environment where participants feel empowered to push themselves past their perceived limits in order to achieve personal growth. The program uses a variety of adventure activities and experiential methods where clients can experience success in the challenges they face, and then ultimately apply the metaphoric learning into their lives.

Key Staff

Jennifer Romero is the current Teen Court Program Manager. Mrs. Romero holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in Psychology and Sociology from the University of New Mexico. She is a Senior Certified Prevention Specialist and is currently working toward her Masters of Social Work in Clinical Therapy at New Mexico Highlands University. Mrs. Romero has been working with high risk youth through the Santa Fe County Teen Court Program since January 2007. Mrs. Romero serves on several community boards and assists in organizing and developing many community wide initiatives. For the purpose of this project, Mrs. Romero will oversee the program components and evaluate to ensure services are appropriate for the needs of the youth. Other responsibilities include administration and management of the programs scope of work, enhancement of existing components, and coordination of collaborative efforts between agencies.

Chanelle Delgado is the current Program Coordinator. Mrs. Delgado holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in Psychology and Sociology from the University of New Mexico and is currently working toward her Prevention Specialist Certification. She has a background in elementary education and worked for the Santa Fe Public schools for several years. Overall, Mrs. Delgado has a sincere passion for the youth in her Santa Fe community, specifically high-risk youth. The key responsibilities of this position include coordination and evaluation of program components and the development and maintenance of program reports. For the purpose of this project, the majority of the workload responsibility will be to assess incoming clients and refer them to appropriate components. Mrs. Delgado will also monitor compliance for defendants who have been sentenced in an effort to prevent recidivism during and after defendant's participation in the Teen Court Program.

Leilani Ringkvist is the Teen Court Administrative Assistant. Ms. Ringkvist holds a bachelor's degree in University Studies with a focus in Art History and Psychology. For the purpose of this project, Ms. Ringkvist will coordinate scheduling of facilitators for each component and keep attendance for participant records. Monitoring compliance for each participant will also be a key responsibility as it pertains to the teen's completion of the Teen Court program and prevention of additional infractions. Ms. Ringkvist will regularly keep in contact with participants to remind them of upcoming classes and deadlines.

Roles of the fiscal agent and AJAP

The role of Santa Fe County as the fiscal agent is to oversee the management of funds to ensure proper use. The role of Santa Fe County Teen Court is to contract appropriate facilitators and manage the proposed project in an efficient manner while providing alternative to adjudication services to incoming youth.

Challenges

Challenges encountered in the current fiscal year in regard to expending our JAF grant funds were due to the longer than usual allocation of the grant. Since many if not all of our contractual services are in place each month, due to the delay in allocation of the grant, we were forced to use allocations from other areas in our budget creating a shortfall in those areas and a surplus of the JAF grant. We are currently working with our component facilitators to offer additional services where needed and anticipate expending all funds before the end of the fiscal year.

LDWI Allocation

In FY15, we will be allocated $30,000 in LDWI funds to be used towards staff salaries and wages. The JAF grant will complement this funding by enabling us to manage, oversee, and evaluate our Shoplifting Intervention Class, Anger and Behavioral Management Program, Restorative Justice Circles, Teen Attorney Internship Program, DWI Prevention Media Literacy Class, Substance Abuse Program, Family Night Presentation, and counseling services. The funds from the JAF grant will be used toward contractual services, opposed to LDWI funds that will cover the salary and wages for the proposed project.

Project Overview

Teen Court of Santa Fe County is a key resource for many agencies in the Santa Fe community. Referrals are made by Municipal and Magistrate Courts, Juvenile Probation & Parole, and Santa Fe Public Schools after a violation has been assessed by the referring agency and recommended to receive Teen Court services. Private schools and parents of teens in need of services also utilize the program. We are cognizant of the importance to meet with each referring agency multiple times throughout the year to exchange new information and discuss the needs of the youth. We will maintain contact with each agency throughout the year. Misdemeanor court hearings are held every other week to allow for traffic court, for a total of approximately 45 court sessions in a fiscal year.

A thorough intake assessment by Teen Court staff is required for a juvenile misdemeanor offender to start the Teen Court process. Assessments are conducted several times each day, totaling 311 in FY13. During the first two quarters of FY14, we completed 149 assessments. Factors used in determining how to resolve a misdemeanor case are based on this initial assessment at Teen Court. Teens are first required to complete a written questionnaire, the Treatment Intervention Interval for Juveniles (TII-Juvenile). The TII-Juvenile was developed specifically for troubled youth screening to help determine appropriate referral alternatives. The TII-Juvenile has 143 items, takes 30 minutes to complete and has nine measures (scales): Truthfulness Scale, Anxiety Scale, Depression Scale, Alcohol Scale, Drugs Scale, Stress Coping Abilities Scale, Self-Esteem Scale, Distress Scale, and Family Issues Scale. Specific score-related intervention, treatment and supervision recommendations are given for each scale. For the reason that some youth cannot fully comprehend a written questionnaire, we also conduct a verbal assessment and include the parent or guardian. The verbal assessment was developed with the help of a local psychologist to meet mental health standards and to assess the overall wellbeing of the family. Other factors are based on the type of violation, the teen's sense of character by their peers, and other information that may come about during their court hearing such as grades, community involvement, and extracurricular activities. Factors in determining a traffic case is based on the type of violation, the teen's sense of character by their peers, and additional information brought forth during their court hearing.

Many of our youth are in need of services that are not available in the community or they experience financial difficulties when they are available. For the purpose of the proposed project, Teen Court of Santa Fe County would utilize the Juvenile Adjudication Fund (JAF) grant to provide the Shoplifting Intervention Class, Anger and Behavioral Management Program, Restorative Justice Circles, DWI Prevention Media Literacy Class, Substance Abuse Program, Family Night Presentation, and counseling services to our participating youth and families at little or no cost to participants. The grant would also assist in supporting our Teen Attorney Internship Program throughout the winter, spring, and summer breaks to ensure the continuation of the program during these off seasons.

Approximately 550 teens and families will be served in FY15, many of them being required to complete one or more of the following program components based on the offense committed by the youth and results of the intake assessment.

- Substance Abuse Program (7 session's total)
- Defensive Driving Class
- Restorative Justice Circle
- Letter of Apology
- G.E.D. Completion (16 years or older)
- Shoplifting Intervention Class
- Middle School Parent Involvement Program (7 session's total)
- Family Night Presentation on How Substances Effect the Growing Brain
- Individual and or Family Counseling
- Behavior & Anger Management Program (3 session's total)
- Youth Drug and Alcohol Program
- Graffiti Clean-Up Project
- Smoking Cessation Program (4 sessions total)
- Mural Project

- Random Urine Analysis Drug Testing
- Voices for Girls Trauma Group

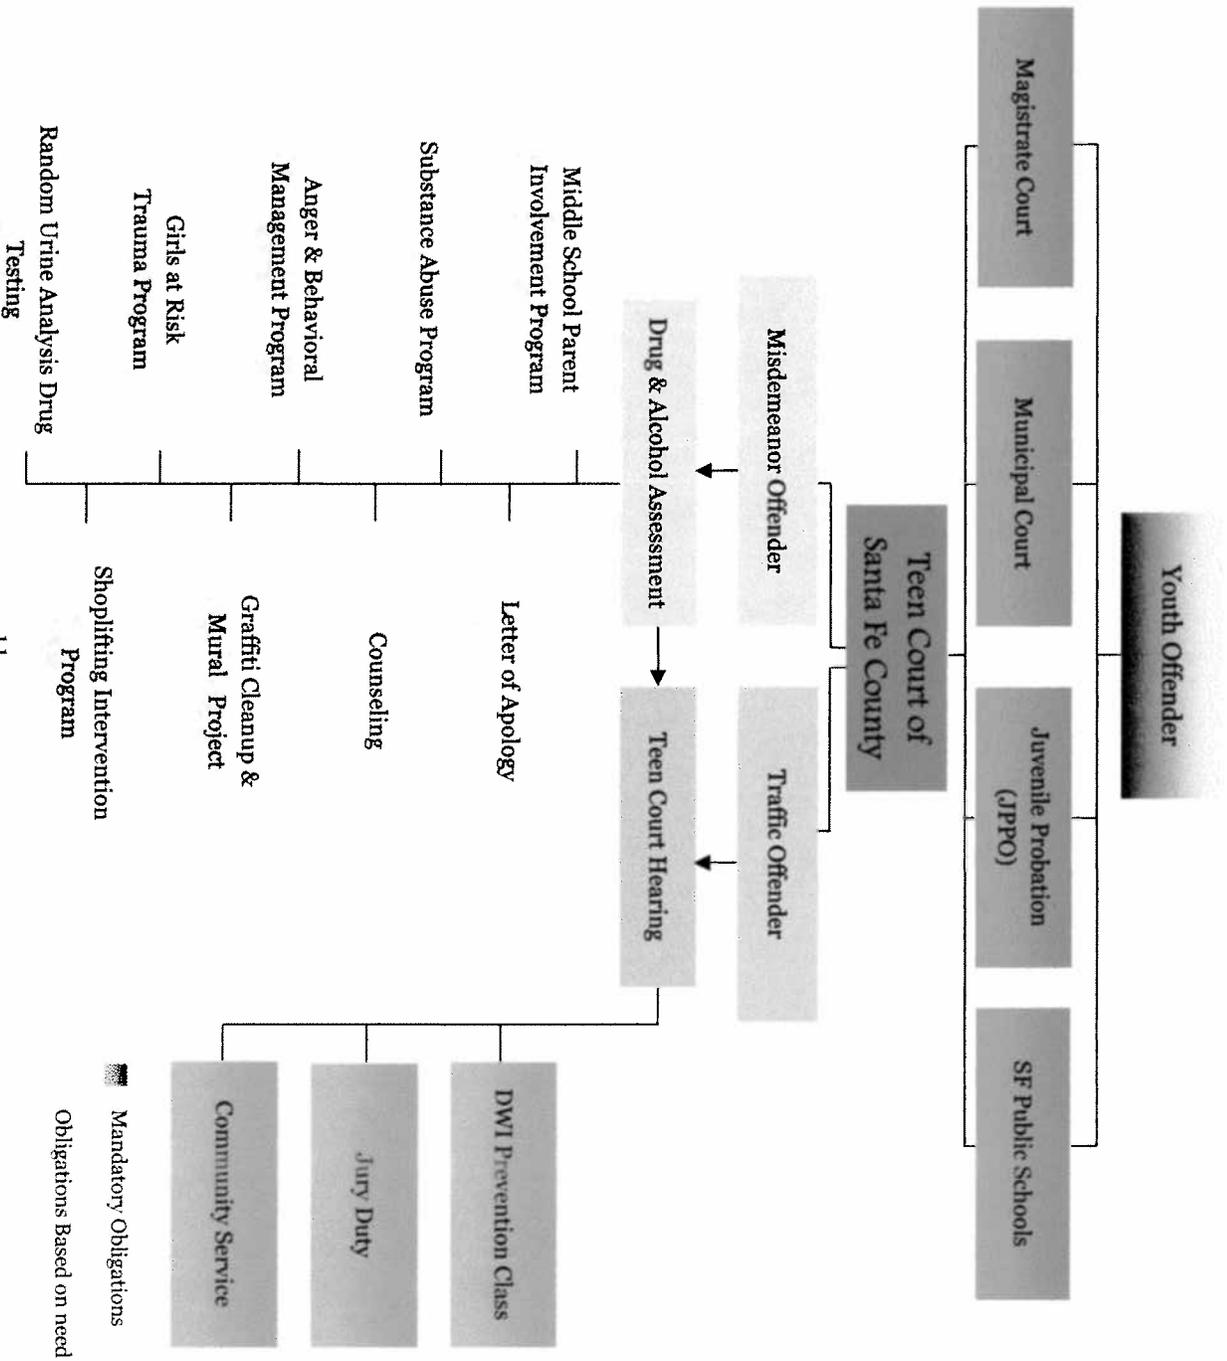

All participants are required to complete community service and serve jury duty, both determined by the peer jury within the range allotted for the teen's offense, and attend the DWI Prevention Media Literacy Class. The teens sentence at their court hearing will include the above requirements and specific quantities of community service and jury duty which will be determined by the peer jury within the range allotted for the teen's offense. The ultimate determination of services a youth will participate in will be made by the person(s) conducting the assessment with approval by the Program Manager. All participants within the Teen Court Program have the option to request, at any time, additional components as they see fit. The Program Coordinator and Teen Court Secretary will monitor compliance by communicating directly with the youth in regard to sentencing deadlines, required component start dates, and community service opportunities. Communication is frequent to ensure obligations are taken seriously and probability of the teen's completion is increased. In FY15 we plan to research other compliance monitoring programs and implement anything that might improve our current systems.

All program components available within the Teen Court Program are facilitated by highly qualified instructors who are experts in the field they teach. The components, when used in combination, encompass all six of the CSAP strategies recommended by SAMHSA. We currently have two evidence-based programs; DWI Prevention & Media literacy Class and the Middle School Parent Involvement Program. The DWI Class is currently under review by SAMSHA's National Registry for Evidence-based Programs and Practices (NREPP) to become a model program.

Many families go without the services they need causing more turmoil or leaving matters unsettled which can lead to future behavioral problems. The grant would enable the Santa Fe County Teen Court Program to assist youth and families in need of counseling services that due to financial difficulties or lack of insurance coverage would otherwise not be an option for them. The JAF grant would also allow for our participants struggling with anger management, bullying, or larceny to receive quality services to resolve their current issue as well as explore any underlying factors of their behavior. Lastly, the grant would complement our Teen Attorney Training Program by allowing us to promote youth development by providing 2-3 paid internships throughout the year when our teens are on spring, summer, or winter break.

Organization Chart

Measurable Objectives

Objective:

Promote youth development via youth internship opportunities and provide quality services for Teen Court participants in need of shoplifting intervention, behavioral management, restorative justice DWI prevention and media literacy, substance abuse prevention, and counseling services.

Performance Measure:

- Number of youth engaged in youth development through Teen Court internship
- Number of participants completing the Teen Court Program
- Number of participants completing program components

Performance Goal:

- Increase youth development opportunities by 10%
- Increase the number of youth completing the Teen Court Program by 10%
- Increase the number of youth attending program components by 15%

Rationale:

In FY13, 276 participants completed their Teen Court obligations and 671 youth and parents participated in the substance abuse program, counseling, anger management, restorative justice, and/or shoplifting intervention. Two of our Teen Attorneys participated in a summer and winter break internship. With the funding from the JAF grant, we could continue to offer and expand quality services to meet the needs of our participants.

Method:

Teen Court staff will coordinate program component scheduling with facilitators to optimize availability and convenience for our youth and families. Staff will supply adequate case management for teens throughout their participation to increase the probability of completion of their sentencing obligations. Staff will also evaluate program components and continue to pursue community partnerships to better assess community needs and revamp components as necessary.

Community Involvement

Teen Court networks with community partners on a regular basis to assess community needs when creating or implementing a program component. The community needs addressed by this project are extensive. Due to widespread networking, we are well aware of what the priorities of our youth are and work towards implementing programs that are beneficial and specific to their needs. Many of our community partnerships will result in additional services at no cost to our youth. We continue to evaluate and revamp program components to meet the needs of the youth, parents, and community.

JPPO Involvement

The Santa Fe Teen Court Program staff work closely with the local Juvenile Probation & Parole Office. In FY13 we received 112 referrals from Juvenile Probation. In the first half of FY14, we have received a total of 89 referrals and are on track to exceed the FY13 benchmark. We are anticipating similar numbers in FY15. In FY14, we relieved approximately 10% of the Juvenile Probation & Parole caseload. Teen Court meets regularly with Juvenile Probation to discuss program components and methods in which we can utilize resources within the community to benefit our youth. Many, if not all of our efforts align with the efforts of our Juvenile Probation Office, therefore collaboration is important to implement a system that works to support our youth while refraining from duplicating services.

Overall Success

This year, with the assistance of a data evaluator, we developed a post-parent survey to parallel our youth exit interview survey. The parent data has helped to better understand the parent's perspective and evaluate what has worked well for their family while going through the Teen Court process. A recidivism study was completed in June 2011 with the purpose of capturing the demographic and socio-economic profile of youth who have completed Teen Court, to find the most effective program components and the recidivism rate for the program. The study concluded that 85% of Santa Fe County Teen Court participants were non-repeat offenders. We hope to conduct another recidivism study in the near future and are currently seeking funds to allow for it to transpire.

Teen Court of Santa Fe County reduces the overall adjudication rate by providing alternative programming. Recidivism is reduced by first evaluating the needs of our youth by networking and partnering with other community agencies to then implement needed quality programs to benefit our youth. Participants are monitored to increase likelihood that they will complete the program and the active application of the sanctions leads one to be less likely to reoffend. The program and services we provide are more frequently sought out by other agencies as well as parents and guardians. The community network in Santa Fe continues to refer to Teen Court as an integral resource.

To Whom It May Concern

February 27, 2014

I am writing this letter in support of Santa Fe Teen Court and all of the tremendous services they provide for the families and children of Santa Fe County. I have been a witness to the effectiveness of these programs and have seen a decline in youth being placed on formal probation since Santa Fe Teen Court started providing services for at risk youth. Another benefit of the programs offered by Santa Fe Teen Court is it offers so many different programs to address different issues from substance abuse to shoplifting to truancy. Teen Court holds the juvenile accountable while providing assistance so that the juvenile will not repeat their mistakes. This is of great benefit to the Juvenile Probation Office because it allows us to focus on the more serious delinquency in our community.

We at Juvenile Probation feel fortunate to be able to place our youth in these programs and always feel they are receiving services of the highest quality. We would support the continued funding of Santa Fe Teen Court and the continuation of these programs.

Sincerely,

Office of Student Wellness

February 27, 2014

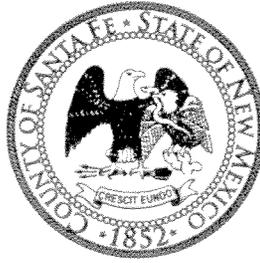

To Whom It May Concern,

The Santa Fe Public Schools (SFPS) would like to express our strong support for the work of Teen Court of Santa Fe County. The Santa Fe County Teen Court Program is an excellent organization that consistently and effectively responds to the needs of our adolescents in a restorative and effective manner. The district refers over 200 students each year who commit serious violations at school to Teen Court to provide critical diversion and education services. Teen Court conducts an assessment, provides referrals, incorporates peer-to-peer accountability and monitors compliance with evidence-based educational programs, counseling and community service. These Teen Court services are responsible for preventing many of our adolescents from entering the juvenile justice system or progressing further into delinquency behaviors.

We are so fortunate to have such an exceptional program and staff available to meet the needs of our students and families. In addition, the Program is strongly committed to collaboration and partnerships, building relationships with key partners in our community, including the Santa Fe Public Schools. Through their efforts, Santa Fe County is a safer and more caring place for all children and families.

Sincerely,

Shelley Mann-Lev, Prevention Coordinator

To Whom It May Concern,

The DWI Planning Council is pleased to express our support for the Santa Fe Teen Court's proposal for Juvenile Adjudication Grant funding. The proposal submitted by the Santa Fe Teen Court program will help fund critical service needs for Santa Fe County youth.

As the Chairperson of the DWI Planning Council, I know first-hand the need for Teen Court and the difference it makes in our community. The Teen Court program serves as the first step in diverting Santa Fe County youth from further involvement with the judicial system. The DWI Planning Council whole-heartedly supports the Teen Court program and the work they do for our community. We hope that Teen Court will continue to play a long-term role of helping youth make positive changes in their lives.

Respectfully,

To Whom It May Concern:

The Santa Fe Regional Juvenile Justice Board (SFRJJB) is a planning and policy entity that is sanctioned by the Santa Fe City Council. The City of Santa Fe provides the fiscal and administrative oversight of the Board. The Board is comprised of major stakeholders in the community that include the following: Judge Mary Marlowe-Sommer, Children's Court Judge; Sara Plitch, Assistant District Attorney; Mark Dickson, Public Defender; Linda Trujillo, School Board Member, Santa Fe Public Schools; Carmichael Dominguez, Mary Ellen Gonzales, Community Member; Tommy Rodriguez, Chief Juvenile Probation Officer; Mark Caldwell, Director, Juvenile Detention Center, Santa Fe County; Jennifer Romero, Santa Fe Teen Court; and Deacon Anthony Trujillo, Faith Community. Our organization has been in existence 2002 and has been responsible in the planning, coordination and procurement of services for the youth of Santa Fe. The programs established by the SFJJB are prevention and intervention programs aimed to divert youth from the juvenile justice system and to provide a strength-based community to nurture positive youth development.

Since 2007 the SFJJB has worked with the Santa Fe Teen Court primarily on the issue of deterring youth from entering the juvenile justice system. Having access to the Teen Court services offers our community a positive strength-based alternative to juvenile probation supervision. Youth who complete the Teen Court services are less likely to re-offend resulting in a beneficial long-term outcome for our youth. The SFJJB is committed to continue its partnership with the Teen Court as we work together to develop additional community services. The SFJJB wishes to endorse the Santa Fe Teen Court grant application to continue teen court services in our community.

Sincerely,

Anthony Trujillo
Chairman, SFRJJB
