Santa Fe County Commissioners Unanimously Certify 2026 General Election Results

County again leads large-jurisdiction counties in voter turnout percentage; hundreds of election workers supported voting across 37 polling sites

Santa Fe, NM - On the morning of November 13, 2026, the Santa Fe County Board of County Commissioners unanimously certified the county's 2026 General Election results, following an extensive canvass process conducted over the past week by the Santa Fe County Clerk's Office Canvass Board.

The certified results now advance to the New Mexico State Canvassing Board for canvass, audit, and approval.

Across the full 2026 General Election voting period, Santa Fe County used a total of 37 polling sites as well as absentee/mail and overseas voters' choices via electronic means to receive over 71,000 ballots. Hundreds of election workers contributed to the effort, supporting voters and helping deliver a smooth election from early voting through Election Day and the completion of the county canvass.

Santa Fe County voters and the elections team brought early enthusiasm and commitment to the election from the start. That shared effort helped Santa Fe County once again achieve the highest voter turnout percentage among New Mexico's large-jurisdiction counties.

Santa Fe County Clerk Katharine E. Clark extends her gratitude to the entire elections team, including the hundreds of election workers whose care, professionalism, and dedication supported the administration of this election. The Clerk's office also thanks Santa Fe County voters for their participation, and the Board of County Commissioners for its role in completing the election certification process.
